

Dive Briefs

SHARE YOUR EXPERIENCES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA WITH US AT FACEBOOK.COM/SPORTDIVER

DB
TRAVEL
SUBCULTURE
DISCOVERY
CONSERVATION
SPECIES
GEAR

Wish You Were Here

It's Better in BC

You'll warm to British Columbia's underwater wows

Sheer walls of glaciers, bald eagles soaring in incredibly blue skies, and tail-slapping humpback whales – it's no surprise that nature photographers flock to British Columbia, Canada's westernmost province. These waters pulse with an abundance of life, including wolf eels, sculpins and red Irish lords. Brilliantly colored sea stars and crabs shelter in stands of bull kelp that thrive in the waters of Race Rocks and Queen Charlotte Strait. The peak season for diving in British Columbia starts in May, when viz can top out at 100 feet.

WHEN TO GO:
May to September

WHERE TO GO:
Ogden Point Dive Centre,
divevictoria.com

FROM TOP: ALEX MUSTARD; CARRIE GARCIA

BRING THIS WITH YOU

Don't Catch Cold

With its dry-sealed spring chamber to prevent freezing, the Zeagle Flat-head 7 delivers excellent breathing performance, even in ice-cold water. MSRP: $629 CONTACT: zeagle.com

SD
03/14